

Hi there.

user1

hello

user2

What are your thoughts about the topic?

user2

In my opinion, I think Democrats are more hypocritical than

Republicans

user1

but I think they're both pretty hypocritical, haha

user1

how about you?

user1

I think it is the opposite

user2

why is that?

user1

Republicans stand for one thing on the surface but neglect the real and complete issues

user2

I think the democrats are guilty of that as well

user1

Take gun control for example. They won't do a thing about it even with all the tragedies going on recently

user2

I complete disagree. How so?

user2

yeah but most democrats talk about wanting to get something done. (i.e. like with the school shooting issue). but when does anything actually get done?

user1

Beto completely called out Gregg Abbott yesterday

user2

yeah that was pretty satisfying to watch

user1

and they said and yelled at him. Don't make it a political issue. It was absurd. The whole issue is political. and they wont do a thing about it

user2

(btw, I'm not a republican, I lean democratic. I'm actually a leftist. both parties piss me off)

user1

I agree

user2

but seriously though, how many years have we been dealing with the same issues in this country?

user1

seemingly forever

user2

the democrats talk about getting things done. but they always have an excuse when something falls through at the last second

user1

I am with you there.

user2

they wring their hands and blame the republicans. which is true, to an extent. but there's so many wishy-washy members of the democratic party who claim that they're "moderate" and refuse to stand up for what's right.

user1

They need to take a stand because it is so important to actually do something'

user2

its just so frustrating these days to hear the same contrived rhetoric like 'i have no words' or 'why does this keep happening?' and we all talk about it for a while, then something else comes up in the news and this event is forgotten

user1

rinse and repeat

user1

I don't have children but if I did I would be terrified of sending them to school

user2

i don't have any either. it would terrify me to bring a child up in this world

user1

I can barely take care of myself in this economy

user1

but yeah, apart from a few democrats who try to 'take a stand' for some hot-button issue, mostly the party is trash...they are quick to make excuses for not being able to do anything. its frustrating to witness.

user1

